There is such a thing as the final feather, and surely there's such a thing as the last endurable millstone. If it does not break the intellectual back as our treatment of the demand will not permit, we must prescribe for our release the dismissal of submission. We've got to have less outside work and more time to indulge in other business. No wonder that orations do not follow dictated and prescribed references. No wonder that there is general depression and deficiency on the part of some men who have no time to attend to these heaped obligations. With musical clubs, debates, athletics, exhibitions and social duties, we have some few responsibilities to discharge. "Ring off" is our war cry. and the pæon is one from a pipe that has the backing of stout and formidable forces.

Proceeds of the Prom.

There has been no little speculation as to the intended disposition of the proceeds from the Prom. Acting on precedent, the committee has seen fit to set the price of the tickets at $4.00 per. About Books.

In his "Battle of the Books" Swift gives a very interesting account of a contest between ancient and modern books. A glance into the library just at present brings this story to mind. One can imagine the hot engagement ensuing upon the arrival of each consignment of new books. The Ancients fight every foot of ground, but nevertheless steadily retired before the heavy onslaughts of the Moderns. That there has been a severe battle, and that the Moderns have found it necessary to call upon all the available reserves is evident from the present appearance of the camping ground. The Ancients have retreated to the hills, and down below the Moderns are busily engaged erecting barracks and breaking in the recruits. But all this is done at the expense of the non-participants. They also I. Coon Town Medley, have been obliged to retreat and have 2. Reading. now taken up their abode in the Faculty Room. Apparently either the advance 3. The Psi U Blaze.

On Thursday afternoon a small but dangerous blaze was started in the basement of the Psi U house. Conjectures as to the cause seem somewhat indeterminate. With the timely arrival of some of the fellows at the house and those who were at hand the fire was extinguished. The departments from the town had hurried up to the scene of danger, but arrived too late to be of material aid. The Psi U's and the college at large take occasion to express their gratitude for the services so willingly proffered by the

THE question of prize orations has been the subject of much comment on the hill during the past week. Various reasons have been given for the dismal Great Convention of Students pose to spend their lives on the mission failure in this department this year and the general concensus of opinion seems to be that it was due to a lack of time and that that lack was caused by a certain subject made compulsory, which by all means ought to be an elective one. The book used was written in exceedingly crude and unpolished language and it is no wonder that the literary style of the seniors became warped by its perusal.

There was absolutely no time left after struggling with MacKenzie on ethics or somebody else on cumulative evidences for five hour recitations weekly to write senior orations. These subjects ought not to be rejected altogether, but they should be made elective so that men who care to write orations will be given a reasonable chance to do so. In vain have we cried for more time, and the more we appeal the less sympathy we receive.

This utter lack of good orations cannot be laid at the feet of the senior class but at the doors of the faculty. We have not been idle, we have not been shiftless, but we are so supremely human that we are unable to do all that has been asked of us. We have been willing enough to work to the full extent of our capacity but we can't do are essential to its success and its rela- Football has bad several successful everything. The outlook for baseball is dismal, but it would be a disgrace even to mention the possibility of not having a team, and it is a worse disgrace not to make the team the best that we can. ### Senior-Junior Basket-ball Game

The second game of the inter-class basket-ball series resulted in a decisive junior victory. The issue was never doubtful. The seniors were at no time in the game; and yet, struggling against the inevitable, they made a plucky up-hill fight. Although not closely contested, the game was "fair to look upon." Amusing incidents and sensational plays, chiefly the former, were frequent, and were well received by the small number who had gathered to witness the strife. Few of the grave old seniors were on The best equipment in Central New York hand to encourage their representatives, while the juniors were supported by a goodly bunch. The score, 54-6, tells the story of the game.

The "Borrowing" of Sleds.

During the past two weeks the whole college has suffered at the hands of somebody who seems to think the sleds used here on the hill are common property. There are times when it is inconvenient to draw a sled to the dormitory or place it on the porch of your house. But of late this has been a necessity. It should not be so; a sled should be as safe anywhere on the hill as under the seal of the United States. Of course, there is no fellow in college who would commit such a misdemeanor. But we should be more aggressive in the protection of our common interests and endeavor to detect the offender. It behooves every one of us to keep a sharp lookout and when a sled is taken by a party whom we know has no right to it to administer the punishment which we think justifiable.

The Northern Trip.

Yesterday at 11 o'clock the Glee and Musical Clubs started on the "bruited" Northern trip. Owing to some inadvertency the demonstration in Watertown fell through and the constituents confessed their inability adequately to entertain the representatives of the college. This was at best a bad misfortune, since the good impression which the concert ind sputably would have engrafted on the up-state mind might have wrought us no little advantage. But "the best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft agley;" and yet we regret to see foundations undermined.

Inter-Class Debate.

The inter-class debate which was scheduled for the first of February has been deferred until the 22nd. No one of the contestants saluted the intelligence with a February face; so at least we are informed. This will assuredly give all the competitors ample leisure for their preparation and research. The cause of the transfer was the communication from the intended speaker for the anniversary of Washington's birthday, stating his regretted inability to address the college. The debate will be held in conjunction with other entertainment on the forenoon of the day, beginning at half-past ten o'clock.

The question reads: "Resolved, That the recent franchise restrictions in the Southern States are justifiable."

The juniors for the affirmative are represented by Messrs. Carmer, Blakely, Allbright and Root.

The seniors for the negative will be The clubs are to give their concert represented by Messrs. Warren, Ward,

Some insist that before we Commons CIOTHING we must have a commodious and modern dormitory. They say that the snares are to be in series and that the trap must be led up to by a series of successive snares. At the present writing opinion seems to assert that the house is built for no prospective tenant. The expressions on this point vacillate as pendulums 'twixt smiles and tears.

The college proper has its beliefs and trusts well guarded. But we believe that before the Commons should be erected If Mot a well accoutred dormitory. We believe such an edifice takes precedence of the other. Since we are to have the Commons Hall now without a doubt we need say nothing of other needs which might in all good order supersede it. But we certainly believe in the dormitory first, for the accommodation of the men who are supposed to be its prospective patrons. All prefer bed to board and consequently this preference must be deferred to. Whatever the intentions of the architects and contractors unprofessional may be, it is worth deliberation, namely, that the prepossessions of the students be considered. The inauguration of this regime. if perfected and established, will involve considerable revolution in some way or other. It will mean perhaps migration and re-institution of old interests on new and untried ground. It will involve executive and economic problems the solution of which will prove momentous if not stupendous. Those in charge of the project must needs anticipate antagonism at any odds or in any event, and this must be thawed 1Robbins & Daddon. and not throttled. The opposition to the scheme, wherever it is, is based on a failure to foresee and penetrate the purpose and philosophy of this procedure. Some derive from it no cue to its philanthropy if such is pondered. Many consider it desirable yet doubt its feasibility; others resent it thoroughly; others with unreasoning sanguineness predict its unexampled and inevitable success. The former class is the one to which membership is most desirable. We want it, 12 but we want to be assured of its purposes and practicability. Can we know before the tide of opinion sets strong in an opposing current?

Incident to the blaze which was generated in the basement of the Psi U House this last week, have been raked up the old and time-tried comments on the water system of the lower hill.
