QUICK RETURNS.

The practice of drawing on parties, when their accounts are overdue, is becoming more and more common here and at the Agency. Hence the importance of our Agents making immediate reports of all collections.— Otherwise there will be great liability of persons being drawn upon who have already paid their accounts, which accident is to be avoided if possible. A case of this kind happened lately. The Agent who made the collection for Oneida, reported the same to the Agency, but the O. C. book-keeper did not hear of it until after the party had been drawn on; now this might have been avoided if the Agent had reported the collection at once to Miss Macknet. Money collected for Oneida may be sent to the Agency whenever convenient, but a report of the same should always be sent here soon after the collections are made. And please remember to write about all such matters directly to the book-keeper, and not to some other person, as that is liable to occasion delay and negligence. W.

Last evening the subject of meeting and treating visitors was up for discussion, and there was some criticism of Mr. Bolles for dropping down too much in spirit to them, and indulging too much in the preaching spirit. It was thought this was quite apparent in his intercourse with some of the recent visitors.

Our fair weather is over for the present, and this forenoon we are having a southeast rain storm.

We should have mentioned before that Charles Vanvelzar returned from his peddling trip on Saturday night. He had quite good luck we believe. He went north into Lewis and Jefferson Counties.

The tall chimney at the children's house has been taken down. A new chimney for the use of the children's department will be put up near the center of the building.

THE CIRCULARS came yesterday morning at an early hour, and were eagerly sought for, as usual.

A small bill of type has been ordered from New York, for use on THE JOURNAL and for job work.

The dairy house is to be dispensed with and removed as soon as other business will permit. The main part will be fitted up for the hostler. The location selected for it, is east of the vineyard which extends south from the horse-barn.

Mr. Hatch says we may report that they "have got a dozen cocoa-nuts to make mince pies with for the children."

The fence between the Weed lot and the Hamilton meadow has been removed. With the exception of the swamp, all the land west of the main road and north of the road leading to the Red School-house, is in one field. Communism makes broad fields.

The curculio hunting still continues. This week two of the women volunteered to take part in the morning hunts. The "Varmints" appear to be diminishing in number, though some of them are increasing in size. A huge one was caught this morning, which Mr. Bristol talks of sending to the Editor of the Horticulturist.

Mr. Miller has gone to New York, and E. S. Burnham to Oswego, on business.

For the benefit of G. W. N. we would state that his hemlock hedge is very beautiful this season. It is now just in the glory of its new growth, and the light green of the young shoots amid the dark green of older leaves forms a charming contrast. We wish the Editor of THE CIRCULAR could see it. Several Norway Spruces have been planted at the western end of the hedge for the purpose of making a more artistic termination in that direction.

We received a letter to-day from a gentleman and lady who stand in conjugal relations to each other, expressing a wish to visit us. The letter was signed "Sylvanus Ward and wife (according to law)."
