

THE O. C. DAILY.

VOL. 3. THURSDAY, JUNE 6, 1867. NO. 135.

WILLOW-PLACE:—G. W. Hamilton spends his days at O. C. helping lay the iron piping for the new aqueduct. We wish the enterprise success.

MACHINE-SHOP:—J. S. Freeman has been doing some work, (cutting gear for a lathe) for a firm in Rome, to the amount of $43,00.

The price of our hired melodeon is $120, not $220 as previously reported. Please note the difference. It appears to be a very fine instrument. Its tone is sweet and sufficiently powerful for our requirements.

The event of yesterday, was Mr. Noyes's visit and stay over night. Our meeting was of thrilling interest, and withal very mirthful. Mr. Noyes's talk sent a thrill through every heart. The meeting will be reported in manuscript. We are very thankful for this visit of his, and feel that good will spring from it. He is up at breakfast with the rest, looking much at home.—We are mowing the lawn.

A cellar has been dug, and the old iron house, so called, near the foundry, has been moved a little distance and placed over it. The workmen are going right on to fit it up as a double tenement house.

In meeting, last night Mr. Easton was called on for a story—he wanted time to think—Mr. Herrick was then called on to tell a story while Mr. E. was thinking one up. Mr. H. wanted time to think too, and would prefer to have Mr. E tell his, first. Mr. E. finally, by the suggestion of some one who had heard him relate it, told about his first experience in witnessing “table tippings.” He was quite young and got thoroughly scared, by the table spinning round the room, untouched by mortal hands.—Afterwards he told us of a scene on board a schooner off cape Hatteras. There was a man so completely stupified with sea-sickness, that it was impossible to rouse him. In the tossings of the craft, a dish of apple-sauce was thrown from the table and the contents cast directly in his face and the only movement he made, was just to turn himself over.

A committee was appointed to decide upon the price for meals, horse-keeping, &c., the coming season. A few meals are now called for almost daily.

Several letters were read, two of which were from persons wishing to join, one a man from Kansas and the others from New-York city. The question was asked by Abram, “Who answers all these letters, or what disposal is made of them?” Mr. Woolworth.—“I dispose of them in quite a summary way; those from the city I refer to the Agency, for papers or information.” It is getting to be quite a business though, and takes not a little time if only short answers are given.

The meeting was closed by the club singing the Nicodemus song.

Tuesday, Lady Campbell accomplished a feat, which some of our younger women would scarcely dare attempt. She walked over to W. P. and back, much preferring that manner of locomotion to riding in a carriage. She met with some obstructions in the outset, from persons trying to discourage her from attempting to go on foot, but she persisted in trying the experiment and set out on her pedestrian route, accompanied by four of the small children. She started about 10 o'clock A. M. and returned between four and five o'clock P. M. Instead of lying down to rest, as most of the women would have done, she did several errands, making calls here and there, and testified that she was not in the least tired, and suffered no inconvenience from her long walk, but on the contrary, felt that it had done her good.

Miss Thomas sprained her ankle slightly a few days since, but is recovering from it. She writes to Mr. W. "It is a real trial to be deprived of the noon meetings, to say nothing of the evening meeting; and yet I am having an experience that I could not have been saved without. I confess my union with the family and the revival spirit. My heart is with you in the noon meetings, though I am a wounded soldier."

Mr. Noyes's stirring railroad talk was read at our noon meeting, yesterday, which, together with additional remarks on the same subject by Mr. Herrick, had a rousing effect, if we may judge from the testimony that was afterward given. Mr. Cragin's letter to Mr. Morris was also read, and the exercises closed with the appropriate song "The Pacific Railroad."

Mrs. Newhouse went to the depot twice, yesterday afternoon, for her mother whom she was expecting on the two o'clock train; but she did not find her, either time, and returned quite disappointed. Mrs. Hyde had been invited to make the O. C. a visit.

Mr. Kelly returned from his peddling route last night, after an absence of a little over a week.

Mr. Worden and Mrs. Burnham left this morning for Wallingford.

The Edmonds, Mrs. Aiken's friends, left this morning; also Mr. Kent started for his home in Michigan.

Yesterday's temperature—
