

THE O. C. DAILY.

VOL. 3. MONDAY, APRIL 15, 1867. NO. 89.

BUSINESS MEETING.

Mr. Underwood proposed that the room left vacant by the office folks, be divided into two dressing-rooms for visitors. Referred to Messrs. Woolworth, H. Barron, C. W. Underwood, Mrs. H. C. Noyes, Chloe Seymour and L. T. Waters.

Mr. Ackley wished to have something done about the garden at Willow-Place. Such vegetables as are wanted fresh, might be raised there. A committee was appointed to attend to the matter.

Mr. Kellogg said he had been a member of the horse-committee for four or five years, and would like to resign. Mr. Woolworth moved that Mr. K.'s resignation be considered when we have bought all the horses we want. Approved.

Mr. Woolworth said he had a request to make similar to Mr. Kellogg's. Thought perhaps he had better defer it till next week. Mr. Kinsley. "I think you had better bring forward your business now." Mr. Woolworth. "Well, I have been a member of the committee on distribution of help three years or more, and would like to be discharged." Mr. Kinsley. "I move that Mr. W.'s resignation be considered when we have distributed all our help." Decided that Mr. Woolworth be relieved, and Mr. Hatch appointed to fill his place.

F. Marks reported that Mr. Rockwell wanted five or six acres of land subsoiled. Referred to Mr. Clark and Kellogg.

Messrs. Conant, Clark and Kellogg were appointed to stake out gardens for our tenants.

Mr. Noyes wrote the following, which he designs to have printed, to show to our visitors, and send to those who may request to make long visits:

“NOTICE TO VISITORS.”

“We esteem it a privilege as well as a duty to entertain strangers and to open our doors hospitably to all. And in order that we may do this on the largest scale, without burdening too much our own resources, it is necessary that visitors should observe the following limitations:

“1. Visits extending to several days should not be made without previous agreement by correspondence, and should not be continued beyond the term agreed upon.

“2. Visits not thus arranged for, should be limited to the day on which they are made, and should not require a night's lodging.

“These rules, of course, can be modified in special cases, if good reasons appear. ONEIDA COMMUNITY.”

Mr. Noyes has been a good deal stirred up, lately, about our visitors, not only here, but at Wallingford. The Morrises have stayed a long time, and Saturday a stranger lady, named Raymond, thrust herself in upon us without any previous notice or correspondence. She said, as she came in, "I don't know but I am intruding." Miss Chloe didn't reply, for she thought it was true. Mrs. R. is an M. D. and is acquainted with S. P. Andrews, Mr. Sands and Newbold, and last, thought not the least, with Amasa Carr. She says Mr. C. speaks well of the Community, but thinks Mr. Noyes arbitrary. She and the Morrises will leave this afternoon.

Mr. Noyes thinks that now, as we are to have more room soon, we shall be able to take in several new members, and the question before the family is, who shall be invited? He thought we needed to make the boundary line between us and the world more distinct, and seek by prayer and fasting, inspiration to direct us in our choice. A meeting was held in the back parlor yesterday, to consider and talk over the matter, and another will be held to-night.

Our people planted potatoes, and sowed peas Saturday.—Mr. Aiken starts for New-York to-day. He expects to be gone about a week.—We have beautiful weather these days, inviting to out-door sports and rambles.—The classes for Elocution are all dissolved. Thanks to Mr. Underwood for his indefatigable labors with the women's class.—One hundred bushels of barley were bought and drawn home Saturday. The farmers intend using that amount for seed.

The Horticulturists went as far toward plowing strawberry ground Saturday, as to get into the field with plow and teams, but finding themselves short of help, and much rubbish to be removed, ground leveled where potatoes had been buried, &c., &c., the job was deferred till to-day.

Mr. Hatch has taken down this morning, the little shed, formerly called the dry-house, which stood in front of the room occupied by the children. The occupants of the Mansion House are glad enough to have it removed.

Mr. Worden's arm and side are some better. The examination of the doctor resulted in the discovery that no bones were broken—no joints dislocated; only a severe sprain, which he would soon get over if he was careful.

Mr. Burt came yesterday forenoon, and he with Mrs. B. went to New Boston in the afternoon, to do what they could toward settling Mrs. B.'s sister's estate.

A place for playing croquet, has been prepared on the lawn south of the Mansion House, and yesterday, play there was lively all the afternoon.
