

DAILY JOURNAL

OF ONEIDA COMMUNITY.

A. D. 1866. JAN. 19. NO. 6.

FRIDAY.

ONE of the leading events of to-day, was the receipt of the following letter by Mrs. Tobey.

Barnstable, Mass., Jan. 15, 1866.

MRS. TOBEY:—I enclose check for $150, and have the pleasure to inform you that at the Probate Court last week the guardianship over your estate was discharged. As soon as I get time, which will be in a few days, I will send you account of your affairs in my hands.

Yours Truly, &c., GEO. MARSTON.

This is a victory which will be felt along the whole line. Mrs. Tobey says she is now of age. She is seventy years old naturally, thirty-six spiritually and twenty-one financially. The event was celebrated by an attractive supper-party in Room No. 9, on the avenue. Mr. Hamilton remarked at the supper that it seemed to him that we were going to have a resurrection experience financially the present year.

Another leading event of the day, was the receipt of the following telegram, by Mr. Cragin :

New York. Jan. 18, 1866.

GEORGE CRAGIN, ONEIDA:—Come here Saturday.—Important business consultation on Sunday.

J. H. NOYES.

We should have mentioned yesterday, in connection with the account of the accident at Willow Place, that Mr. Conant displayed a very good spirit in confessing his fault in starting the machinery. His own criticism of himself showed that he fully appreciated the affair, and rendered further criticism unnecessary.

Roswell Hawley has gone into the machine-shop to work. He will undoubtedly make a first-class workman in that department, judging from his past career in the trap-shop.

The weather continues warm, the south wind blows and the snow is fast disappearing from the hills.

There is a continued and manifest growth of unity in the family, and more and more the hearts of the Community are becoming as the heart of one man. The expulsion of Carr and Wright from among us, has lifted a load of obstructing influences, and we breathe more in unison and see more nearly eye to eye every day. We begin to feel that henceforth we move in solid phalanx, every man's elbow touching his fellow's.

W. A. Hinds, Joseph, George Miller and the office girls, have formed a class for studying the science of detecting counterfeit money. They say it is an interesting study.

We have two classes in Rhetoric now, one of nine members under the teachership of Mr. Underwood, and the other numbering eighteen under that of Mr. Kelly.

The group engaged in getting ice, were obliged to discontinue their labor during the forenoon in consequence of the ice melting so much as to render it too wet to handle. Meantime the cutting machine will be arranged for cutting the ice into smaller blocks, as the width of the guage previously made them too heavy to handle.

The question of sending C. O. Kellogg to Wallingford was brought up in the evening meeting, and a unanimous vote in favor of the proposal was given. The general testimony was, that Otis is just the man for the place, though there was a little reluctance to part with him here. He is an invaluable man in his sphere. It is expected that his going to Wallingford will tend to unite and harmonize the farming interests of the two Communes. We wish him success and congratulate Wallingford on his accession to their ranks.

DEPARTURES.—Preston R. Sherrard. He is a young man of considerable natural ability and some culture. Has read THE CIRCULAR a year and is interested in it. Is out of health. Has been to the Dansville Water Cure, where Dr. Jackson gave some treatment gratuitously. He seems to have swallowed Jackson whole. Jackson played the same game with him that he has played with thousands of others. He manages to get people under obligation to him and to impress them with his importance and leadership, and so shuts their mouths so far as sincere estimate and expression as to his character are concerned. It is to be hoped that his shameless egotism and prostitution of himself and the truth to the love of money, will sometime find their fitting exposure and reward.

It may be understood hereafter that the DAILY JOURNALS will contain the latest news up to 12 o'clock the day they are printed. They have thus far only contained the news of the day previous.
